Provisions ofthe Companies Act, 2013 state that auditors shouldnot have tenure of over 10 years. Although the Actand the Rules thereunder provide a transition periodof up to 3 years from commencement of the Act (i.e.on 1st April 2014) in certain cases. The transitoryprovision is one time provision and 139(2( does notrestrict or override operation of section 139(1). In nutshell, transitory provision has to be used in one shotfor a period up to 3 years and not in instalments of 1year each, as it will violate the spirit of section 139(1).The Company had appointed PKF for a term of oneyear in last AGM concluded on 12th August, 2014under section 139(2). We are of the opinion that theuse of transitory provision is not available to theCompany again. |

Provisions oftheCompanies Act, 2013 state that auditors should nothave tenure of over 10 years. Although the Act andthe Rules thereunder provide a transition period ofup to 3 years from commencement of the Act (i.e. on1st April 2014), in certain cases, we are of the opinionthat the transitory provision is one time provision and139(2) does not restrict or override operation ofsection 139(1). In a nut shell, transitory provision hasto be used in one shot for up to 3 years and not ininstalments of 1 year each, as it will violate the spiritof section 139(1). The Company had appointed themfor a term of one year in last AGM concluded on 18thJuly, 2014 under section 139(2). We are of theopinion that the use of transitory provision is notavailable to the Company again. In our opinion , theproposed appointment will result in violation ofprovisions of Section 139(1) and 139(2) of theCompanies Act, 2013.No concern has been identified in this regard. |

Provisions ofthe Companies Act, 2013 state that auditors shouldnot have tenure of over 10 years. Although the Actand the Rules thereunder provide a transition periodof up to 3 years from commencement of the Act (i.e.on 1st April 2014), in certain cases, the transitoryprovision is one time provision and 139(2) does notrestrict or override operation of section 139(1). In anut shell, transitory provision has to be used in oneshot for up to 3 years and not in instalments of 1 yeareach, as it will violate the spirit of section 139(1). TheCompany had appointed M/s P.L Tandon & Companyfor a term of one year in last AGM concluded on 26thJuly, 2014 under section 139(2). The use of transitoryprovision is not available to the Company again. |
