Market Actions & Overview

- The average roll spreads captured this month was 7.63% annualized. Allocation towards hedged equities is at 78.2 with tilt towards Midcap. No duration or credit risk is taken on the debt side and that will pull down the final returns a bit.
- At the onset of December expiry rollover basis were levelled at 74-75 bps with minimal participation, further lowering to 70-72 bps. Start of the rollover week, we saw short roller interest at 69-70 levels and was maintained progressively with decent volumes. Finally on expiry day with no improvement in roll levels or volumes, rolls traded in a range of 65-68 bps with certain stocks hitting lower at 60-62 bps.
- The Nifty 50 index decreased 1.6% in December 2024 (MTD) after declining by 0.3% in November 2024. Third consecutive month of negative returns.
- This month, FIIs have been net buyers of equities - after two months of selling. This month FIIs have purchased equities to the tune of $2.5 bn. This month average roll basis was higher than previous expiry, 73 bps vs 57 bps previous month.
- Markets were buoyant in the first half of the month; however, the third week of the month saw the Nifty 50 decline by 4.8% - steepest weekly loss since June'22, erasing most of the gains. Spillover from US markets & the continued sell-off by FIIs contributed to the downturn.
- In the RBI's MPC meeting, the Repo rate was left unchanged at 6.50%. The decision was not a consensus one, as some sections of the market were expecting a rate cut; even within the MPC there were two dissenting voices. The spike in the last inflation and upside risks to inflation over the near term were given prominence overgrowth concerns.
- CPI inflation dipped to 5.48% YoY in November (est.: 5.50%; prior: 6.21%). Investors are cautious - keen to see how president elect Trump handles trade policy with respect to other countries (especially China) post his swearing in.

Global Markets

- Global equity markets around the world have shown mixed sentiments, this month. In the US, the FED cut its policy rate by 25 bps, as expected, bringing down the Fed funds rate to 4.25-4.5%. However, this was a hawkish cut, with the dot plot indicating only two cuts in 2025 as against expectations of four. The hawkish outlook led to a sharp market reaction: UST2Y and UST10Y yields both spiked by 10-11 bps, whereas S&P tanked 3% and DXY rose ~1.2%.
- US CPI rose by 0.3% in November 2024 – the most in seven months, YoY it rose by 2.7% Vs 2.6% in October 2024. Progress in lowering inflation toward the US Central Bank's 2% target has virtually stalled.
- In the UK, CPI rose to 2.6% (YoY) in November 2024 – rising second month in a row to the highest level in eight months while the central bank held interest rates at 4.75% as it downgraded growth forecast and warned of stagflation risk.
- In the US, two out of the three major indices are trading positive this month (MTD) - with NASDAQ having increased the most, by 4.2%. US10YR increased from 4.18% (November 2024) to 4.6%. US Dollar Index increased from 105.7 in November 2024 to 108.1.
- Crude increased since last month: (Nov $72.9/bbl to $73/bbl).
